Improving The Lawn

Mowing, Rolling and Sprinkling. Washington, June 9.—There is no hard and fast rule to be followed in connection with mowing the lawn, but clipping twice a week is not apt to injure it, and will induce the formation of a good turf, according to the lawn specialists of the United States department of agriculture.

There are probably more mistakes made in connection with the watering of the lawn than in any other phase of its management. The practice of sprinkling as it is almost universally followed is fundamentally wrong, not that the sprinkler does not furnish enough water to the grass during the season, but that it does not furnish it in properly distributed quantities.

Except in rare cases, the lawn should not be watered oftener than two or three times a week, provided watering is done properly. A thorough soaking is necessary and should be given in the late afternoon or early morning.

Cooperate in Buying Purebred Livestock.

Regardless of the duration of the war the resident farmer will make no mistake when he gradually substitutes livestock for cotton. He will in that way get out of competition with ignorant pauper negro labor which goes to the support of absentee landlords and time merchants. And as we grow into the livestock industry we will raise crops that can be sown and gathered with horse power and farm machinery, while our hogs and cows and colts will still further solve the hired labor problem by gathering their own crops in pastures nine months out of the year. In order to "grow into the livestock industry," we must cooperate in the purchase of pure-bred sires and in the purchase of seeds. In this line of cooperative activity every local union in the cotton and tobacco sections should get busy. Two or more members in each local union should purchase at least one pure-bred sire this spring. Investments of this kind will ultimately pay the biggest dividends that it is possible to obtain by any investment that can be made by a group of organized farmers in the cotton section.—J. Z. Green, in The Progressive Farmer.

Save the Manure Crop

The secret of profits in all great manufacturing concerns is to utilize fully all the by-products—see that nothing goes to waste. This is good sense and good business. Farmers should do likewise and suffer nothing to waste.

One of the most important of farm by-products is manure. Let us remember that the refuse from cows, horses and hogs is worth often $1 per month.

My plan is to use ample litter to catch liquids and to apply it to the soil each week, spreading it thin. The use of cottonseed meal as feed adds much to the value of the manure. Manure is ideal plant food, and supplies what all soils need—nitrogen and humus.

It is a shameful exhibition to see manure exposed to the weather or allowed to leach or fly.

In applying manure it is better to spread it on top rather than to plow it under.

Even hen manure is worth much attention, as each hen should contribute 25 cents per year.—Ira M. Hawkins, in The Progressive Farmer.

COMB SAGE TEA IN LIFELESS, GRAY HAIR

If Mixed with Sulphur It Darkens So Naturally Nobody Can Tell.

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and abundant with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair fell out or took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonder full effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, ready to use, for about 50 cents. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair and is splendid for dandruff, dry, itchy scalp and falling hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and abundant.
